THE CORCORAN GALLERY OF ART

MAIN ENTRANCE ON SEVENTEENTH STREET

Preface.

THE CORCORAN GALLERY OF ART, originally located at the corner of Seventeenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue, including ground, building, its contents, and endowment fund, was the gift of the late William Wilson Corcoran to the public by deed, dated May 10, 1869, "to be used solely for the purposes of encouraging American genius in the production and preservation of works pertaining to the Fine Arts, and kindred objects," with the condition that it should be open to visitors without any pecuniary charge whatever at least two days in each week, with authority to charge for admission at other times such moderate and reasonable fee as might be prescribed, the proceeds arising therefrom to be applied to the current expenses of the Institution.

The Institution was chartered by Act of Congress May 24, 1870. By that act the building and its contents were declared exempt from all taxation. The organization of the Gallery was completed by the Board of Trustees on November 6, 1873, and on April 29, 1874 all of the rooms of the Institution for exhibition purposes were opened to the public.

The building was used for the purposes for which it was intended until it became apparent that, as planned, it would, in a comparatively short time, be wholly inadequate for the proper display of the works of art belonging to the Gallery, while larger and better facilities were already required for the rapidly growing Free Art School, for which thoughtful provision had been previously made by Mr. Corcoran. At the same time it was found that it would not be possible to enlarge the then existing building so as to meet the future wants of the two establishments. These conditions impressed upon the minds of the Trustees the necessity of providing, without delay, for the erection of a larger, more conveniently arranged, and better lighted building, upon a plot of ground large enough to not only furnish space for the projected structure, but also to provide for such enlargements of the Gallery as might be required from time to time to suitably house future acquisitions of paintings, sculptures, etc. With these ends in view steps were taken to find and secure a proper location, and on the 3rd of April, 1891, the purchase of a portion of Square 171, fronting on Seventeenth and E Streets, respectively, on the east and south, and on New York Avenue on the north, was ordered, and subsequently effected.

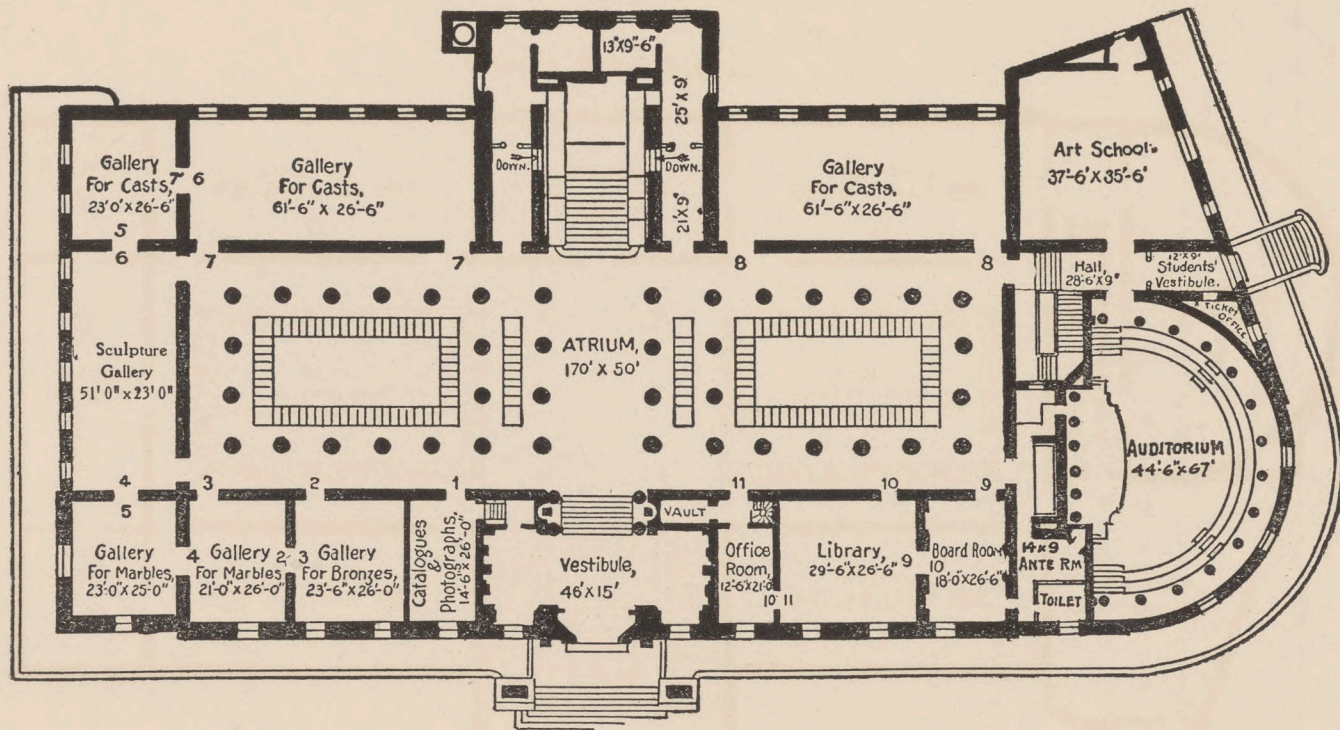

On the 9th of January, 1892, it was determined to erect a new Gallery building on the eastern portion of the ground thus secured.

MAIN STAIRWAY

The new structure was designed by Mr. Ernest Flagg, of New York, and ground for the foundation was broken on June 26, 1893. The corner-stone was laid, with appropriate ceremonies, on May 10, 1894, and the building was completed on January 8, 1897. It was formally opened, with a brilliant reception, on the evening of February 22, of that year.

PLAN OF FIRST STORY

PLAN OF SECOND-STORY

Description of the Building.

THE building stands with its main front on Seventeenth Street, extending from New York Avenue on the north to E Street on the south, a distance of 259 feet, extending back 133 feet, and occupies about half of the lot.

The style of architecture is Neo-Grecian, the material being white Georgia marble, on a basement of Milford pink granite. The first story is pierced by windows; the second story rises in a solid white wall broken only by a row of open-work marble panels along the upper edge, which serve as ventilators to the Galleries.

Between these panels and the cornice, which is rich in ornamental carving, extends a narrow frieze bearing in Roman letters the names of some of the most famous painters and sculptors of ancient and modern times. The roof of glass slants sharply upward to the ridge, which is finished by a cresting of bronze, terminating at each end of the building in a winged griffin.

The severity of the elevation is broken by the curve at the north end, in which is located the Art School. It also contains a semi-circular auditorium on the first or main floor, used for lectures, etc., and on the floor above, a gallery for various special or temporary exhibitions, which connects with the main picture galleries on the second floor.

The main entrance to the building is on Seventeenth Street. On either side of the steps, upon white marble pedestals, rests a colossal bronze lion, cast from moulds made over the famous lions by Canova, which guard the tomb of Clement XIII, in St. Peter's, Rome.

Passing through this entrance, a broad and easy flight of stairs leads directly to the main corridor or atrium. This is the largest hall in the building, being 170 feet long and 50 feet wide, running north and south of the main entrance on the first floor. Its light comes through openings or light-wells in the ceiling above, which is supported by forty fluted monolith columns of Indiana limestone. This spacious hall is devoted to the exhibition of casts from sculptures of the antique and Renaissance periods. The rooms surrounding it—except those required for the library, administration purposes, etc.—are also given up to original marbles, casts, bronzes, etc., including the large and valuable collection of the works of the late Antoine Louis Barye, the eminent French sculptor of animals.

Directly in front, upon entering, and upon the further or western side of the hall or atrium, rises the grand white marble staircase, fifteen feet in width, and of easy tread, which leads to the second-story atrium, of the same dimensions as the one below. This has an immense skylight supported by thirty-eight fluted monolith columns, also of Indiana limestone.

Ten large doorways, with sliding doors, lead from the atrium to the galleries for paintings—four fine large rooms on Seventeenth Street, two small and one large one on E Street, and two still larger on the west, on either side of the main staircase, all admirably adapted for their purpose and perfectly lighted, whether for day or night exhibitions.

The entrance on the north or New York Avenue side of the building leads to the auditorium, a spacious room, of beautiful proportions, and also to the several rooms set apart for the School of Art.

The dimensions of all the rooms and galleries are given on the accompanying floor plans.

For information concerning the Art School connected with the Gallery see Prospectus, separately printed, to be had by application to the Secretary of the Art School.

Photographs of many of the paintings and other works of art in the Gallery are for sale at the door.

In accordance with the previous policy of the Gallery it is expected that a succession of various special exhibitions of unusual interest and educational value will be held. These exhibitions include works in the different fields of artistic endeavor—paintings, sculptures, etchings, etc.—and the planning of such special displays, for the education and benefit of our public, has become an important and vital part of the Institution's work.

The Gallery is open to the public as follows:

On Mondays, from 12.00 M. to 4.30 P. M.

55 THE WOOD-GATHERERS

Dated 1875 Size: 45 x 65

Corot was inspired to use for the motive of this picture an old study from Morvan representing a landscape with St. Jerome at prayer. Alfred Robaut owned the sketch for this picture, and also another one in which the composition was changed from "St. Jerome" to "The Wood-Gatherers." Corot made several sketches for this picture and, in the last transformation of the motive, he changed the principal figure and added other figures. The studies show the transition to an enlargement of the final painting.

The painting was destined to become the property of a Mr. Breysse. Corot signed it in his bed a few days before his death. It was exhibited at the Salon in 1875 (No. 519 of the catalogue), and was sold at the Faure sale April 29, 1878. It appeared at The Corcoran Gallery of Art in 1886.

[The subject of this picture is as follows: Ulrich, son of Count Eberhard, had lost the battle of Reutlingen, and was dangerously wounded. Many of the nobility were slain. On his recovery he leisurely sought his father, at Stuttgart, and found him over his solitary meal. He was coldly received. Not a word was spoken. With downcast eyes he placed himself opposite his father. Fish and wine were served to him. The old count seized a knife, and cut the table-cloth between them. Frenzied by this insult, Ulrich rushed into the middle of the next fight, gained the battle of Doffingen, and was slain.—Ballad of Uhland.

"And while we were celebrating the victory in our camp, what was the old count doing? Alone in his tent, weeping over the dead body of his only son."—Ballad of Schiller.
